BAPAUME'S FALL NEAR CALL DECISION OUTRAGE

Von Hindenburg Reported Directing Teuton Retirement on West Front

PARIS, March 14. Another sweeping French victory was announced in today's official statement. The statement said:

On Tuesday, south of St. Mihiel, the French captured Romainville Farm and penetrated at four different points up to the second lines of the enemy between the Meuse and Apremont, im-

LONDON, March 14. The German retirement around Bapaumonder British pressure may pressage aban onment by the Teutons of the entire line of the Bapaume to Beaurains, near Arras.

Viewing the fail of Bapaume as certain within the next few days military experts today pointed out that with the British accupying this important strategic point the loop in the front to the north between that city and the German lines opposite Arras was likely to be very untenable for the enemy. It would constitute a constant invitation for an encirciling flanking move-ment from British forces southward from Arras and northward from Bapaume.

England was vastly interested today in the explanation of Major Moraht, printed in the Berliner Tageblatt, according to Holland dispatches.

It elaborately explained the well-known strategical tactics of von Hindenburg as exhibited in previous campaigns on the eastern front "in order to gain ample space for strategical movements," and was con-struct here as designed to prepare the German public for a withdrawal on the west-ern front on a huge scale. Moraht de-clares the ground evacuated by the Germans is poor terrain for fighting.

Meanwhile the British forces are pushing steadily ahead, methodically strengthening their positions on the newly won ground. An interesting intimation in Major Moraht's statement is that you Hinden-burg himself is conducting the retreat of

TEN MERE MEN TO COOK AT GROCERS' FOOD FAIR

Will Show "Womenfolk" a Few Things About Culinary Art

Ten mere men, selected at random from the marital ranks, will demonstrate what they know about cooking this evening at the Food Fair of the Retail Grocers' Association in Horticultural Hall, Broad and Locust streets.

These men are not professional cooks: they are just amateurs—husbands and fathers of families who are going to show the "womenfolks" that when it comes down to a case of necessity they know something more about cookery than the mere boiling of water and frying an egg. Two of the contestants have agreed to make dapjacks in lightme, and good flapjacks, too; one has guaranteed to turn out an omelette that really can be eaten, and two others have promised to make corn bread that will make the women pink with envy.
